AUTHORS AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS 517

The grouping of non-EU countries and territories by continent is based on geographical criteria only and does not have any political implications. For this exercise, we have followed the ESTAT GEO (Geopolitical entities reporting) code list which provides geographical entities for statistical purposes at the aggregate-level of countries, regions and organisations.

PREFACE

At the end of 2020, there were an estimated 281 million people around the world who had migrated from one country to live in another. Many millions more moved within their countries of origin, migrating from villages and towns to rapidly-growing cities. Migration has continued to be a policy priority for Europe. The EU has had to respond to several crises, whether in the case of people fleeing Afghanistan, crossing the Mediterranean Sea or camping out in the cold at the EU's external borders. At the same time, it has also sought to create more pathways for legal migration because, in the words of Commissioner for Home Affairs Ylva Johansson, *'Europe needs talent ... So Europe can have the skills we need to face the future. And to help us manage migration to Europe, in an orderly way.'*¹

In this context, the latest iteration of the Atlas of Migration could not be more important. The Atlas collates international data which are harmonised and validated for 27 EU Member States and 171 countries and territories around the world. These data are presented in individual country profiles, and overviews for continents and sub-continental regions. The 2021 edition also includes a thematic section which provides new insights on the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on migration in Europe and around the world. Each year, the Atlas of Migration provides a shining example of the innovation, rigour and collaboration which characterises the Joint Research Centre's support to evidence-based policymaking in the European Commission. My personal thanks go not only to the team members who have produced this tool, but also to the broader network of colleagues across the Commission and the EEAS who have fed into its development and dissemination.

Finally, let us also remember that there is much more to migration than the numbers. Many migrants, with their own experiences, aspirations, hopes and fears, have played a key part in our societies' response to and recovery from the pandemic. Two children of Turkish immigrants to Germany, Ugur Sahin and Özlem Türeci, founded the company which produced the first vaccine approved for use against the virus. And thousands of migrants in key worker roles have kept our societies functioning. Migration has shaped societies around the world, and continues to do so.

INTRODUCTION

The Atlas of Migration is built on the conviction that accurate data can inform a more detailed understanding of trends, patterns and differences in migration over time and from place to place. As has been widely noted, public perceptions tend to over-estimate the scale of migration. People's views are based on a range of factors, from their own experiences to their access to different sources of information and concerns about broader social, economic and cultural change. The Atlas aims to be a reliable source of information, promoting the accurate understanding of migration and mobility that have been and will remain a defining feature of Europe's society, economy and politics for decades.

Around the world in 2020, migration continues to be an exception rather than a rule for most people. Only an estimated 3.6 percent of the global population has moved to live in another country. In the EU, migration inflows declined in 2020 when compared to the previous year. Whereas in 2019 2.9 million people were granted permits enabling them to move to the EU from non-EU countries and territories, in 2020 2.2 million were. In part, these figures show the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, as will be described in the dedicated thematic section later in this Atlas. Yet they also suggest that there is no global migration crisis. As Commissioner for Home Affairs Ylva Johansson has said, 'Migration is normal - migration has always been here, migration will always be here ... [it] works quite well I should say, And we need migration.'²

Late in 2020, European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen stated that 'it is now time to rise to the challenge to manage migration jointly, with the right balance between solidarity and responsibility.'³ During 2021, the European Commission has followed this up across a range of themes related to the New Pact on Migration and Asylum. The steps taken include a new EU strategy on voluntary return and reintegration,⁴ the formation of a European Union Agency of Asylum,⁵ the announcement of forthcoming Talent Partnerships⁶ to bring foreign workers to Europe and a strategy on combatting trafficking in human beings.⁷

And yet, in 2021 the European Union also had to face specific serious situations and events related to migration and displacement. Late in August thousands of people gathered at Kabul airport in Afghanistan seeking to flee from the Taliban takeover of the country.⁸ In the Mediterranean Sea, over 1 500 people are reported to have died attempting to cross to Europe.⁹ And as the year comes to an end hundreds of people are camped out in freezing conditions on the Poland-Belarus border.¹⁰ Europe's approach to these and other situations has repercussions far and wide.

Migration will continue to be significant for the future of the EU. The COVID-19 pandemic has reiterated the important role of thousands of migrants who work in key sectors that are vital for the functioning of our societies. Without intra-EU mobility and international migration, several Member States' populations would also be in decline. But as the country profiles in the pages that follow highlight, there is also a need to be aware of the differences between individual countries and their contexts to better understand migration and its implications.

MIGRATION IN THE EUROPEAN UNION

HOW TO READ

This section covers each of the 27 EU Member States (MSs). The charts are organised in thematic parts. More detailed information is available in the Technical Notes at the end of this section.

The data refers to 2020. If the data for 2020 is not available from the original source, the corresponding field is either missing or indicated as 'N/A'. Whenever 2020 data is not available for an entire thematic part, the latest available values are provided. Note that in some cases, the sum of percentages or of individual values might not add up to 100 or to the total value. This is due to rounding and confidence intervals.

OVERVIEW [at 1st January] (Eurostat)

Population - 2020 (in thousands)

The larger donut chart shows the number of people residing in the MS by broad group of citizenship. The groups are 'Nationals', 'EU Mobile', 'Non-EU' (which includes also 'Stateless' and 'Unknown'). The total population of the country is in the centre.

Annual flows - 2019 (in thousands)

The two smaller charts show the scale of migration to and from the MS. The top chart shows the number of people who have immigrated to the MS over the last year. 'Within EU' immigration refers to people who are citizens of other EU MSs. 'Outside EU' immigration refers to non-EU citizens.

The bottom chart shows the number of people who have emigrated from the MS over the last year, moving to another MS ('within EU') or to a non-EU country/territory ('outside EU'). The total numbers of immigrants and emigrants are in the centre of each respective chart.

DEMOGRAPHY [at 1st January] (Eurostat)

Population pyramid - 2020 (in thousand)

The chart shows the demographic composition of the population in the MS. It indicates the number of people by age group, sex (males and females) and broad group of citizenship (shown from the outside to the inside of the pyramid), specifically 'Nationals' (citizens of the MS), 'EU Mobile' (citizens of the other 26 MSs) and 'Non-EU' citizens (which includes also 'Stateless' and 'Unknown'). The original Eurostat data is organised in five-year cohorts and has been aggregated to obtain ten-year cohorts. The data refers to the population as of 1st January.

RESIDENCE PERMITS (Eurostat)

First residence permits issued during the year

The top chart shows the number of people who have received a particular residence permit for the first time during a year, for the last four years (annual flow of resident permits). The reasons for issuing permits are 'Work', 'Family', 'Education' or 'Other' (which includes international protection).

Valid residence permits at the end of the year

The bottom chart shows the number of migrants residing in the MS with different types of residence permits and with permits that are valid for at least five years (national and EU long term residence permits). This shows the total number of permits held by people in the country at the end of the reference year (the migrant stock). The reasons for valid permits are the same listed above.

ASYLUM [1st Instance] (Eurostat)

First time applications

The chart shows the number of people who have made a first application for asylum in the MS during a year. The data covers the last years and is broken down by sex.

First instance decisions

The chart shows the distribution of decisions on first asylum applications in the MS by outcome: 'Geneva' for 'Geneva convention status'; 'Subsid.' for 'Subsidiary protection'; 'Human.' for 'Humanitarian protection'; and 'Reject.' for 'Rejected application'.

The total number of decisions on first applications for asylum during a year is shown on the right.

SCHENGEN VISAS (Migration and Home Affairs)

Visas applied for, issued and not issued (in thousands)

Each donut chart shows the percentage of Schengen visas issued and not issued per year. The number in the centre shows the total number of visas applied for during each year.

The figure refers to the sum of uniform visas (including MEVs), LTVs, and ATVs. For detailed description, see Technical Notes.

Note that for Romania, Bulgaria & Croatia the data on LTV visas is missing.

IRREGULAR MIGRATION (Eurostat)

Persons ordered to leave, persons returned and return rate

The bar shows the number of people who have been 'Ordered to leave' the MS and the circle shows those 'Returned to a third country/territory' following an order to leave per year.

Return rate

The return rate on the right is calculated as the ratio between the number of people returned to a third country/territory following an order to leave and the people who received an order to leave. Since it is calculated on annual data, it might result higher than 100%, because of administrative backlogs.

NATURALISATION (Eurostat)

Foreign citizens who have acquired citizenship during the year

Each of the pie charts, together with the relative number, shows how many people from other countries and territories have acquired the citizenship of the MS per year. The data is broken down into (a) people whose previous citizenship was of another MS ('EU Mobile') and (b) people whose previous citizenship was of a 'Non-EU' country/territory (including both 'Stateless' and 'Unknown').

Share of foreign citizens who have acquired citizenship [%]

The bar charts show the acquisition of citizenship over the last four years by people who are nationals of another country. The first bar ('EU') shows the proportion of all nationals from other EU MSs residing in this country who have acquired its citizenship during the calendar year. The second bar ('Non-EU') shows the proportion of all citizens from non-EU countries and territories residing in the country (including Stateless and Unknown) who have acquired its citizenship during the year.

SOCIAL INCLUSION - 2020 (Eurostat)

The three charts refer to different aspects of social inclusion of migrants in the MS during the year. Together, they highlight differences in the relative wealth and living standards of residents by broad group of citizenship: Nationals, EU Mobile and Non-EU.

Median equivalised net income (18+) shows differences in income levels for adults by broad group of citizenship. The values are in euro.

Overcrowding rate (18+)(Households) shows the percentage of adults by broad group of citizenship who live in a household defined as 'overcrowded'.

Persons at risk of poverty or social exclusion (18+) shows the percentage of adults by broad group of citizenship who are either at risk of poverty, face serious material deprivation or live in a household defined as having a 'very low work intensity'.

At risk of poverty rate for children indicates the number of people under 18 (by citizenship of their parents: Nationals vs Non-Nationals) who are defined as being 'at risk of poverty'.

EDUCATION - 2020 (Eurostat)

The three charts show differences in educational attainment and participation in education by broad group of citizenship: Nationals, EU Mobile and Non-EU.

Population by educational attainment (25-64) refers to the proportion of people aged between 25 and 64 by their education level. 'LOW' refers to Less than primary, primary and lower secondary education; 'MEDIUM' refers to Upper secondary and post-secondary, non-tertiary, education, and 'HIGH' refers to Tertiary education.

NEET (18-24) shows the proportion of people aged between 18 and 24 who are 'Neither Employed nor in Education or Training' in the four weeks preceding the survey.

Early school leavers (18-24) shows the proportion of people aged between 18 and 24 which has completed no more than lower secondary education and is not involved in further education or training.

LABOUR MARKET - 2020 (Eurostat)

The charts present employment and unemployment related indicators by broad group of citizenship ('Nationals', 'EU Mobile' and 'Non-EU') and sex. The top three charts show also a breakdown by age group, whereas the bottom one by education attainment. This section shows similarities and differences in integration of these subgroups in the labour market.

Employment rate shows the percentage of the total working-age population which is employed.

Unemployment rate indicates the percentage of unemployed people in the labour force. It is calculated as the ratio between the unemployed population and the sum of employed and unemployed population within the same group.

Long term unemployment rate refers to people who have been unemployed for more than one year. It is calculated as the proportion of the total unemployed population within each group which has been unemployed for more than one year.

Employment rate by educational attainment (15-64) shows employment rates by level of educational attainment. 'LOW' refers to Less than primary, primary and lower secondary education; 'MEDIUM' refers to Upper secondary and post-secondary, non-tertiary, education, and 'HIGH' refers to Tertiary education.

MIGRATION IN NON EU COUNTRIES/TERRITORIES

HOW TO READ

This section covers 171 non-EU countries and territories grouped by geographical continent and subcontinents according to Eurostat guidelines. This organisation is based on geographical criteria only and does not have any political implication. More detailed information is available in the Technical Notes at the end of this section. For each country/territory, the charts are organised in thematic parts. Maps and flags are for illustrative purposes only. The data refers to 2020. If the data for 2020 is not available from the original source, the corresponding field is either missing or indicated as 'N/A'. Whenever 2020 data is not available for an entire thematic part, the latest available values are provided. Note that in some cases, the sum of percentages or of individual values might not add up to 100 or to the total value. This is due to rounding and confidence intervals.

MIGRATION [in thousand] (UNDESA)

Migrant population within and outside the country/territory

The chart is relative to migrant population estimates (stock) at mid-year. The figure on the left shows the total number of people residing in the country/territory who have immigrated from the EU ('EU') or from somewhere else in the world ('other'). The figure on the right shows the total number of people from the country/territory who have emigrated to the EU ('EU') or to somewhere else in the world ('other').

UNDESA estimates on migration stocks are available every five years, with a two-year revision as of 2017.

ASYLUM IN EU [1st instance] (Eurostat)

First time applications

The chart shows the number of citizens from the country/territory who have made a first application for asylum in an EU MS per year. The data covers multiple years and is broken down by sex. The total number of annual applications is at the bottom of the chart.

First instance decisions

The chart shows the decisions made by EU MS on asylum applications by nationals of the country/territory. Outcomes are one of the following:

- 'Geneva' for 'Geneva convention status';
- 'Subsid.' for 'Subsidiary protection';
- 'Human.' for 'Humanitarian protection';
- and 'Reject.' for 'Rejected application'.

The total number of annual decisions is on the right of the chart.

IRREGULAR MIGRATION IN EU (Eurostat)

Persons found to be illegally present

The chart shows the annual number of people from the country/territory who have been determined by EU MS authorities to be 'illegally present' under their national laws relating to immigration. Note that the definition of 'illegally' may vary across MSs and only people who are apprehended or otherwise come to the attention of immigration authorities are counted. People who are 'illegally present' might have entered the EU MS legally.

Persons ordered to leave, persons returned and return rate

The bar chart shows the annual number of people from the country/territory who have been 'Ordered to leave' the MS and those who have physically 'Returned' to their country/territory of origin or another third country. From this data a 'Return rate' has been calculated. This is the ratio between the number of people physically returned and the people ordered to leave. Since it is calculated on annual data, it might result higher than 100%, because of administrative backlogs.

DEMOGRAPHY [in thousand] (UNDESA)

Population - 2020

The figure on the top shows the total population estimates (in thousands) in the medium fertility variant scenario.

The pyramid shows the demographic composition of the population in the country/territory. It indicates the estimated number of people (in thousands) by age group and sex (males and females) in 2020. The original UNDESA estimates are organised in five-year cohorts and have been aggregated to obtain ten-year cohorts.

The figure on the bottom shows the population change (%) between 2020 and 2030 according to the medium fertility variant scenario.

REFUGEES AND IDPs (UNHCR, UNRWA, IDMC)

Refugees from/within the country/territory & IDPs - 2020

The chart shows the number of people at the end of the reference year for the following groups:

- Refugees and people in refugee-like situations from the country/territory residing in an EU MS ('EU') or in countries and territories other than that of birth and outside the EU ('other');

- Refugees and people in refugee-like situations in the country/territory;

- Internally Displaced People (IDPs) due to armed conflict, generalised violence or human rights violations in the country/territory as well as to natural disasters.

Data on refugees and people in refugee-like situations is from UNHCR and UNRWA. Data on IDPs is from IDMC. IDPs data includes people who have been displaced by both conflicts and natural disasters.

RESIDENCE PERMITS IN EU (Eurostat)

First residence permits issued during the year

The top chart shows the number of people from the country/territory who have received a first residence permit in an EU MS each year, during the last four years. The reasons for issuing permits are 'Work', 'Family', 'Education' or 'Other' (which includes all forms of National and International Protection. Further details in Technical Notes).

Valid resident permits at the end of the year

The bottom chart shows the number of migrants from the country/territory residing in the EU at the end of the year and the different types of residence permits that they hold. It also shows the number of people with permits that are valid for at least five years (national and EU long term residence permits). This signals the total number of permits held by people in the country/territory at the end of the year (the migrant stock).

NATURALISATION IN EU (Eurostat)Citizens who have acquired citizenship in EU

The bar chart shows the acquisition of citizenship over each of the last four years by people who are nationals of this country/territory and have moved to an EU MS.

POLITICAL (World Bank, Inst. for Economics and Peace)Global Peace Index, Political stability, Control of Corruption, and Government effectiveness.

Four indicators give an overview of the political context in the selected country/territory.

The number at the top shows the latest available data. The line shows the trend over time for the annual value.

For continent and subcontinent factsheets, the latest available values are shown for all countries within the region.

See Technical Notes at the end of this section for definitions and additional info on the four indicators.

SOCIAL CONDITIONS (World Bank)Below international poverty line, GDP per capita (PPP), Urban population, and Under 5 mortality rate

Four indicators give an overview of the context of the social conditions in the selected country/territory.

The number at the top shows the latest available data. The line shows the trend over time for the annual value.

For continent and subcontinent factsheets, the latest available values are shown for all countries within the region.

See Technical Notes at the end of this section for definitions and additional info on the four indicators.

LABOUR MARKET (ILO)Labour force participation rate by sex and age group, Employment by sex and economic activity, Employment rate by sex and age group, and Unemployment rate by sex and age group

Four indicators give an overview of labour market conditions in the selected country/territory.

The number at the top shows the latest available value of the 'total' indicator, i.e. without any disaggregation by possible dimensions (sex, age, or/and economic activity).

For continent and subcontinent factsheets, the latest available values of the 'total' indicator are shown for all countries within the region. See Technical Notes at the end of this section for definitions and additional info on the four indicators.

INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS

This section shows whether the country/territory is a State Party to (by accession, ratification or succession) or has preliminary endorsed (by signature) key international agreements and bilateral agreements with the EU. This gives an overview of international and bilateral frameworks governing different forms of migration in the country/territory. For a definition of each agreement, see the Technical Notes. For continent and subcontinent factsheets, only the number of countries/territories that are part of each agreement is shown; please check the specific country/territory factsheet to see its negotiation phase for each agreement.

FINANCIAL INFLOWS (World Bank, UNOCHA, OECD, UNCTAD)Humanitarian aid + ODA, Remittances and Net FDIs (as % of GDP)

The chart presents aggregated data on Humanitarian aid plus Official Development Assistance (ODA), Remittances and Net Foreign Direct Investments (FDI) sent to the country/territory during the reference year. The bars show these three types of financial transfers as a percentage of GDP.

For continent and subcontinent factsheets, the latest available values are shown for all countries within the region.

See Technical Notes at the end of this section for definition and info on the three financial inflows.

EDUCATION (World Bank, ILO)NEETs, Government expenditures in education, and Working-age population by sex and education

Three indicators give an overview of human capital in the selected country/territory.

The number at the top shows the latest available data. The line shows the trend over time for the annual value.

For continent and subcontinent factsheets, the latest available values are shown for all countries within the region.

See Technical Notes at the end of this section for definitions and additional info on the four indicators.

TECHNICAL

DEMOGRAPHY [IN THOUSAND] (UNDESA)

Indicator: Total population, demographic pyramid and population change

Source of data: UNDESA WPP Standard Projections, Population – medium variant, annual, from 1950 to 2100 (total, female, male)

Description: Total population is based on the de facto definition of population in a country/territory, area or region as of 1st July of the year indicated. It comprises total population, as well as female and male population, and it is presented in thousands. The population change between the reference year and 2030 is calculate by KCMD on projections in the “Medium Fertility Variant” scenario.

Note: Data on Kosovo is included in Serbia. This is without prejudice to positions on status and reflects data in the original source. Data on China do not include Hong Kong and Macao, which are presented separately by the source.

Link: <https://population.un.org/wpp/Download/Standard/CSV/>

Date of consultation: 07/12/2021 (last update 28/08/2019).

MIGRATION [IN THOUSAND] (UNDESA)

Indicators: Migrant population within and outside the country/territory

Source of data: UNDESA – Pop. Div. – Total International Migrants Stock by Origin and Destination

Description: International migrant stock at mid-year (both sexes) by origin and by major area, region, country/territory or area of destination.

Note: In principle, refugees (under UNHCR and, when relevant, UNRWA) are included in the number of migrants. However, it should be noted that inconsistencies might arise when comparing the number of migrants reported by UNDESA with the number of refugees reported by UNHCR or by UNRWA. This is mostly due to differences (definitions, reference period and methodologies) in data collections..

UNDESA data on Kosovo are included in Serbia. This is without prejudice to positions on status and reflects data in the original source. Data on China do not include Hong Kong and Macao, that are presented separately by the source.

Since 2007, the refugee population also includes people in a refugee-like situation” (<http://www.unhcr.org/refugee-statistics>). According to the UNHCR glossary: “The category of people in a refugee-like situation is descriptive in nature and includes groups of people who are outside their country of origin and who face protection risks similar to those of refugees, but for whom refugee status has, for practical or other reasons, not been ascertained.” (<http://reporting.unhcr.org/glossary/r>). Data on China do not include Hong Kong and Macao that are presented separately by the source.

AND MIGRATION: RESPONSE TO RECOVERY

INTRODUCTION

Over the last two years, the COVID-19 pandemic has challenged and transformed societies around the world. There have been more than 254 million confirmed cases of COVID-19 worldwide, and over five million deaths.¹ The economic impact has been drastic, with the world's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) contracting by 3.4% in 2020² Face masks, social distancing, travel restrictions, lockdowns and vaccine certificates have become a regular part of many people's daily lives. And as this Section of the Atlas of Migration will show, there have been significant implications for international migration too.

The pandemic has also underlined the importance of migration and mobility for countries in Europe and around the world. This includes the vital contribution migrants make to sectors such as agriculture, healthcare and science and their role as key workers doing many of the day-to-day essential tasks that keep societies functioning. It also includes the major contribution they make to the pandemic response and recovery in their countries of origin by sending remittances. As noted by Commissioner for Home Affairs Ylva Johansson, 'We can't fight the virus without migrants. And our economies will not recover without migrants ... migrants are not "them". They are part of "us".'³

In this section of the Atlas of Migration we examine the shifting trends and implications of the COVID-19 pandemic for international migration and mobility. In doing so, we build on the special section of the 2020 edition of the Atlas, but with the added benefit of now having access to statistics which specifically refer to the period of the pandemic. In some cases, the latest available data refers only to 2020, whereas in others we already have access to data from 2021.

This section adds to the range of studies, which have so far examined migration during the pandemic. In the available research, there is consensus that the COVID-19 pandemic has had wide-reaching and significant implications for migration, but that these also vary from place to place. In broad terms, we can refer to the impact on migration flows and on the lives of migrants and refugees.

On one hand, there has been a general reduction in the scale of international migration flows. Separate studies from the OECD,⁴ Migration Policy Institute⁵ and European Migration Network⁶ have highlighted a decline in global migration flows as a result of border closures, restrictions on business and tourist travel and administrative delays in granting visas in many countries. But migration did not completely stop. During 2020 and 2021, many countries maintained migration pathways for people working in specific sectors which relied heavily on migrant labour such as health or agriculture. Other countries allowed temporary migrant workers who were already in the country at the time of border closures to stay for longer and put in place processes to ensure they had a legal residence status.

On the other hand, there is increasing evidence available on the detrimental impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the lives of migrants and refugees. This includes the severe reduction in opportunities in labour markets where migrants tend to work and which cannot be carried out remotely, such as in the service and tourism sectors. The Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations has also highlighted how migrant workers engaged in seasonal employment have suffered from mobility restrictions and the negative impact that this has had on their livelihoods and on households in their countries of origin.⁷ But as well as economic implications, migrants and refugees have also faced impacts on their health and wellbeing. For example, the Apart Together survey of 30 000 migrants and refugees also found them to be particularly vulnerable during the pandemic when a lack of financial means, fear of deportation, lack of access or entitlement to healthcare providers could cause them to doubt whether to seek medical care.⁸

Although the pandemic has continued through 2021 and will do so into 2022, many countries around the world have eased their restrictions on international travel and internal mobility. In Europe, vaccine certificates⁹ have underpinned a cautious, regulated reopening of social and economic life. The experience of the pandemic so far shows that migration will not stop, but it will be managed in new ways. Vaccine passports and travel corridors with more or less restrictions are likely to continue to shape the opportunities available for people from different parts of the world to travel globally. Although the longer-term implications in terms of who can move, where and how are yet to be fully understood, the following pages provide a starting point for reflecting based on our experience of the pandemic so far.

1. COVID-19 PROPAGATION

Throughout 2020 and 2021, the COVID-19 pandemic spread rapidly, touching societies in every world region. In this section, the maps and charts describe the evolution of the pandemic's spread during 2021. To do this, the maps below show the total cumulative amount of cases (the circle and the figure in each country) and the cumulative amount of cases per one million inhabitants (the shading of the country) for each country at different points during the year.

By the end of 2020 there had been over 80 million confirmed cases and 1.9 million deaths attributed to COVID-19 worldwide. Moreover, the spread of COVID-19 was uneven, in terms of both the rate of its propagation within and between countries and the total number of cases in different places. For example, whereas there had been approximately 360 000 deaths due to the virus in the United States of America by the end of 2020, in Australia or South Korea there had been only 900.

Throughout 2021, vaccination programmes added a new line of defence to the pandemic response and were the basis for many countries to loosen their restrictions on mobility. But COVID-19 has continued to circulate around the world. At the time of writing in November 2021, there had been a total of 257 million confirmed cases of COVID-19 since the beginning of the pandemic. Over five million people had lost their lives to COVID-19.

The variations between countries witnessed through 2020 have continued in 2021. As was the case in 2020, the country with the most confirmed cases throughout the pandemic has been the United States, reaching over 45 million confirmed cases by October (equal to 68 737 cases per one million inhabitants). In Europe, the country with the highest caseload has been the United Kingdom, with over nine million confirmed cases (equal to 66 278 per million inhabitants), followed by France with seven million confirmed cases (53 078 per million inhabitants). In South America, the countries with the largest caseloads were Brazil (21.8 million cases), in Africa it was South Africa (2.9 million) and in Asia it was India (34.3 million).

Although international comparisons can be made difficult by a lack of reliable data in countries lacking detailed public health datasets and limited testing facilities, the available evidence suggests that many countries have had relatively small caseloads. These may be influenced by strict travel restrictions, quarantine measures and testing and tracing systems. For example, by October 2021 there had been a total of only 169 237 cases in Australia (3 300 per million inhabitants) and 6 067 cases in New Zealand (627 per million). There are also signs that many countries in Africa have had relatively small caseloads, such as Ghana (2 071 cases per million inhabitants), Uganda (1 359 cases per million inhabitants) or Malawi (1 594 cases per million inhabitants).

This general overview highlights how the global propagation of COVID-19 has not slowed during 2021, although there have been variations across different regions and countries. But propagation has fluctuated over time within individual countries, shaped by seasonal changes, levels of adherence to rules on social distancing, and the pace and spread of vaccination campaigns. For example, a focus on EU Member States (Figure 3) shows not only did all countries have a significant number of confirmed cases by 1st May (with the highest in Luxembourg, Italy, Ireland and Belgium), but also that several countries (e.g. Czechia, Sweden, Poland, Italy, Romania, Germany) had a stable trajectory over the summer and autumn months. These figures show how, although nearly all countries have experienced a continued rise in the number of cases of COVID-19 during 2021, the intensity of the public health crisis has varied within and between countries over the course of the year.

These included closure of public transport, stay at home requirements, limits on in-person working, reduced internal movement and restrictions on international travel.

pandemic during 2021, as encapsulated in the University of Oxford's Stringency Index.¹⁰ The Stringency Index synthesises information on a number of indicators of government response into one figure, which facilitates comparison across countries. Information on policies is collated and scored under seven indicators, specifically referring to school closures, workplace closures, cancelling public events, restrictions on gathering size; it is not a rating of the appropriateness or effectiveness of a country's response.

Looking back to 2020, we saw how highly stringent measures were implemented by countries on all continents, whether in world regions with the highest number of cases such as Europe or North America or in those with relatively lower caseloads such as Oceania and Africa. In the second half of the year, however, different countries made different decisions on the level of restrictions and limits to keep in place. These trends are important for international migration, because they impact on the opportunities for people to enter or leave countries, or to move within them to find and undertake employment.

Variety in the stringency of policy responses has also been evident throughout 2021. Whereas in America, Europe and some countries of Asia there were highly stringent measures in place early in the year, in many countries in Africa there were less stringent measures in comparison with the rest of the world. Six months later, moreover, there was a relaxation of measures on a global level with the exception of countries in Asia and Oceania such as Indonesia, Philippines and Australia.

In Europe, there has been a general relaxing of measures over the course of the year, although some countries such as Italy, France and Greece maintained or reinstated relatively stringent measures. Moreover, in the autumn there has been a return to more restrictive measures in countries such as France, Latvia, Greece and Austria as concerns are raised regarding the arrival of the winter months and their impact on transmission rates.

3. COVID-19 AND INTERNATIONAL MIGRATION

The COVID-19 pandemic has had major implications for international migration flows. As well as travel restrictions, in many EU Member States governments had a reduced capacity to provide services such as processes to apply for and obtain residence and work permits. The pandemic also reduced opportunities for migrant workers by impacting on sectors which often employ migrants, such as agriculture, services and tourism. And in many countries of origin, people may have been deterred from migrating due to the risk of contracting the virus or decided to stay at home to work or study remotely.

As the charts below show, migration to the EU declined by 24% in 2020 compared with 2019. This is a major shift from the trend over recent years, which saw consistent and relatively small year on year increases in the number of people being given permits to come to the EU. In 2020, 2.25 million residence permits were granted to people migrating to the EU. This was the lowest annual number of permits for the last five years. It was significantly lower than the 2.96 million permits granted in 2019.

However, looking in detail at individual Member States reveals a more complex picture of shifts and changes. Although the pandemic did impact on migration flows, it did not stop all migration or have the same impact in different places.

In nineteen Member States, the number of permits granted to migrants in 2020 was lower than the average of the previous five years. This suggests that the pandemic inverted the prevailing tendency of migration flows. In Germany, for example, the number of permits granted for work reasons was 70% lower in 2020 than the average of the previous five years and the number of permits for study reasons was 69% lower. In Italy in 2020 the number of permits for study reasons fell by 58%, and the number of permits for family reunification was 43% lower compared with the average of the previous five years.

Moreover, in the remaining eight Member States the number of permits awarded in 2020 was higher than the average of the previous five years. This suggests that the pandemic was not the main factor shaping migration to these countries, or that governments could mitigate the impact of the pandemic on migration flows. For example, the number of permits for work reasons granted by Lithuania was 131% higher in 2020 than the average of the previous five years, and the number of permits for study was 30% higher. In Hungary, there was a 70% increase in the number of work permits awarded to third country nationals.

As well as differences between Member States, there were also variations within countries according to the reason for migrating. These figures reflect the differentiated impact of the pandemic on particular migration pathways. For example, Spain awarded 66% more permits for work reasons in 2020 when compared to the average of the previous five years, but 28% fewer for study reasons. Because certain sectors, such as agriculture, still required in-person workers during the pandemic, some Member States continued enabling the arrival of migrant workers and exempted them from mobility restrictions in the country in order to ensure a continued labour supply. Other sectors did not require in-person attendance, such as in the case of universities which shifted to online modes of research and teaching. The reduction in in-person activity could have deterred people from travelling, or also opened new opportunities for working and studying remotely without physically moving to another country.

Finally, the available data shows no clear relationship between migration and the number of confirmed cases of COVID-19. For example, both Spain and Italy have had approximately five million cases of COVID-19 but whereas in Spain there was a 28% increase in migrants arriving with permits in 2020, in Italy it decreased by 51%. In this vein, the Centre for Global Development has found that restrictions on international mobility in past pandemics only caused a slightly later arrival of the virus and no detectable reduction in final mortality.¹¹ As a result, conditions for transmission within a country are likely to play a more important part in determining COVID-19 caseloads than migration.

4. ASYLUM IN THE EU AND COVID-19

This section shows changes in volume, origin, and destination of first asylum applications in 2020 and 2021 when compared with previous years. It does so by comparing monthly data on first-time asylum applications. Comparing the figures for 2020 and the first months of 2021 with the average of 2018 and 2019 enables us to examine similarities and differences between the situation during the pandemic and the past trend.

As can be seen in the maps and charts here, there has been a reduction in the number of first-time asylum applications made in the EU-27 but it has not been as marked as the decline in the number of residence permits (see previous chapter). Figure 13 shows that the total number of first-time asylum applications made in the EU-27 during 2020 was lower than in the previous years. Whereas in 2020 there were 457 000 first time applications, in 2019 there had been 710 000. But the figure for 2020 remains higher than the annual number of applications for the years preceding the refugee crisis of 2015. Although the pandemic may have impacted on the capacity of some people to travel to the EU or to lodge asylum applications once arrived, the factors causing people to leave their homes in search of safety and shelter continue to drive forced migration to Europe.

Furthermore, the number of applications has fluctuated over the time of the pandemic. As can be seen in Figure 14

[1], during the first months of the COVID-19 pandemic in Europe in the Spring of 2020 there was a dramatic decline in the number of asylum applications. In April 2020 there were only 8 005 first time applications made, compared with 45 570 in April 2018 and 48 415 in April 2019. But over the rest of the year, the monthly number of first time applications returned to a higher level of between 27 580 and 30 710 during the summer and autumn months. The rapid decline of Spring 2020 did not mark a new trend, nor was it repeated until September 2021.

There have been marked differences between Member States as well. Across the EU during 2021, there has been a general reduction in the number of asylum applications when compared with 2018–2019. On a Member State level, Greece, Italy Spain, France, Germany have had the largest reduction in asylum applications. In Germany, in particular there were more than 39 000 less applications made in comparison with the average of 2018 and 2019. In contrast, Romania, Bulgaria, Austria, and Croatia have all seen increases in the number of applications during 2021 in comparison with the average of the previous period.

Figure 15 and 16 shift the focus to countries of origin of people who have applied for asylum in the EU in the first nine months of both 2020 and 2021. They show that there has been a decline in the number of applications across nearly all countries of origin compared with the average of the pre-pandemic years (countries with a difference of less than 1000 applications are excluded from the map). The largest reduction in the number of applications regarded people from Iraq (169 000 less applications than the average of the same period in 2018 and 2019), followed by Nigeria (128 000 less) and Albania (117 000 less). The number of applications increased for only four countries of origin, specifically Comoros (13 000 more applications than the average of 2018 and 2019), Colombia (9 000 more), Peru (4 000) and Belarus (3 000).

These figures paint a varied picture in terms of asylum applications in the EU during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Whilst there has been a general decline in the number of applications, this cannot be easily attributed to the pandemic in the case of every Member State. The drivers of forced migration are multi-faceted and shift over time according to the context in countries of origin, along transit routes and at the borders of EU Member States. In this sense, it is possible that the data reflects the COVID-19 pandemic has impacted on the institutional capacity of Member States to process asylum applications as well as the factors driving people to seek asylum.

5. IRREGULAR MIGRATION TO THE EU AND COVID-19

Irregular migration has been a recurrent political concern for the EU and its Member States. This is despite the fact that the number of people making an irregular border crossing each year represents only a small proportion of the total migration flow into the EU. This section examines the number of irregular border crossings during the COVID-19 pandemic compared with previous years.

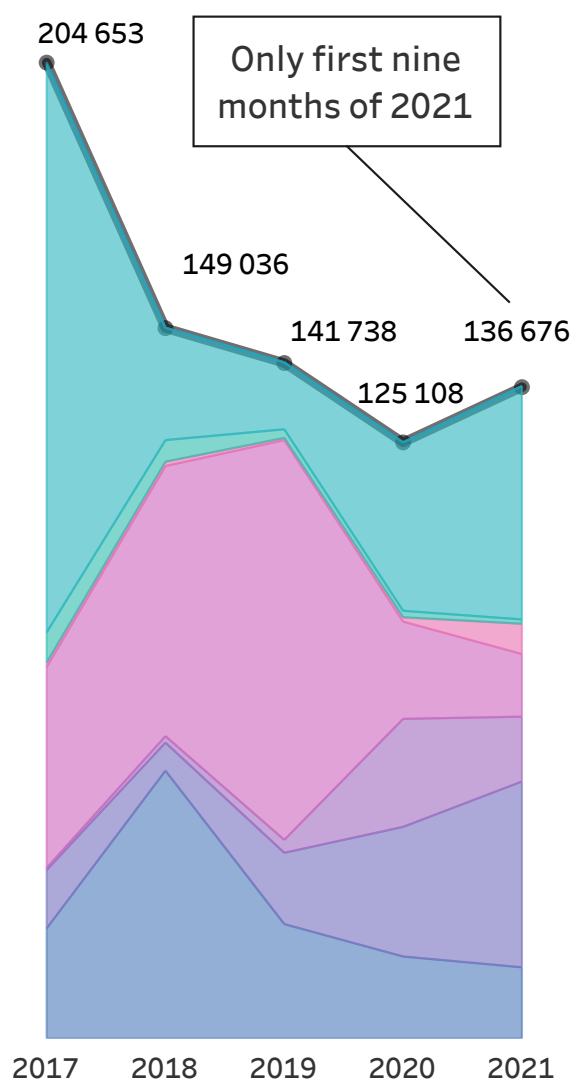

Whereas there has been a clear reduction in the scale of regular migration and asylum applications in the EU during the pandemic, this has not been the case with irregular migration. As Figure 17 shows, there was relatively little variation in the number of irregular border crossings detected by Frontex in 2020 when compared with the preceding three years.

Moreover, the number of irregular border crossings detected in the first nine months of 2021 was 78% higher than in the same period in 2020. The only route with a large decline in the number of detected irregular border crossings was the Eastern Mediterranean one, falling to 13 184 from 15 980 in 2020 and 52 169 in 2019. From 2020 to 2021, the number of detected crossings increased on all the other main irregular migration routes.

A range of factors shape data on irregular border crossings and need to be considered when interpreting the changes seen in the context of COVID-19. These include the availability of smuggler networks to facilitate border crossings and the presence of push factors driving people to move on from transit countries, as well as the capacity of border control measures by EU Member States to detect crossings. The overview provided by the data here suggests that the pandemic is not the only, or even the most important, factor shaping irregular migration to the EU

6. MIGRANT WORKERS IN THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC

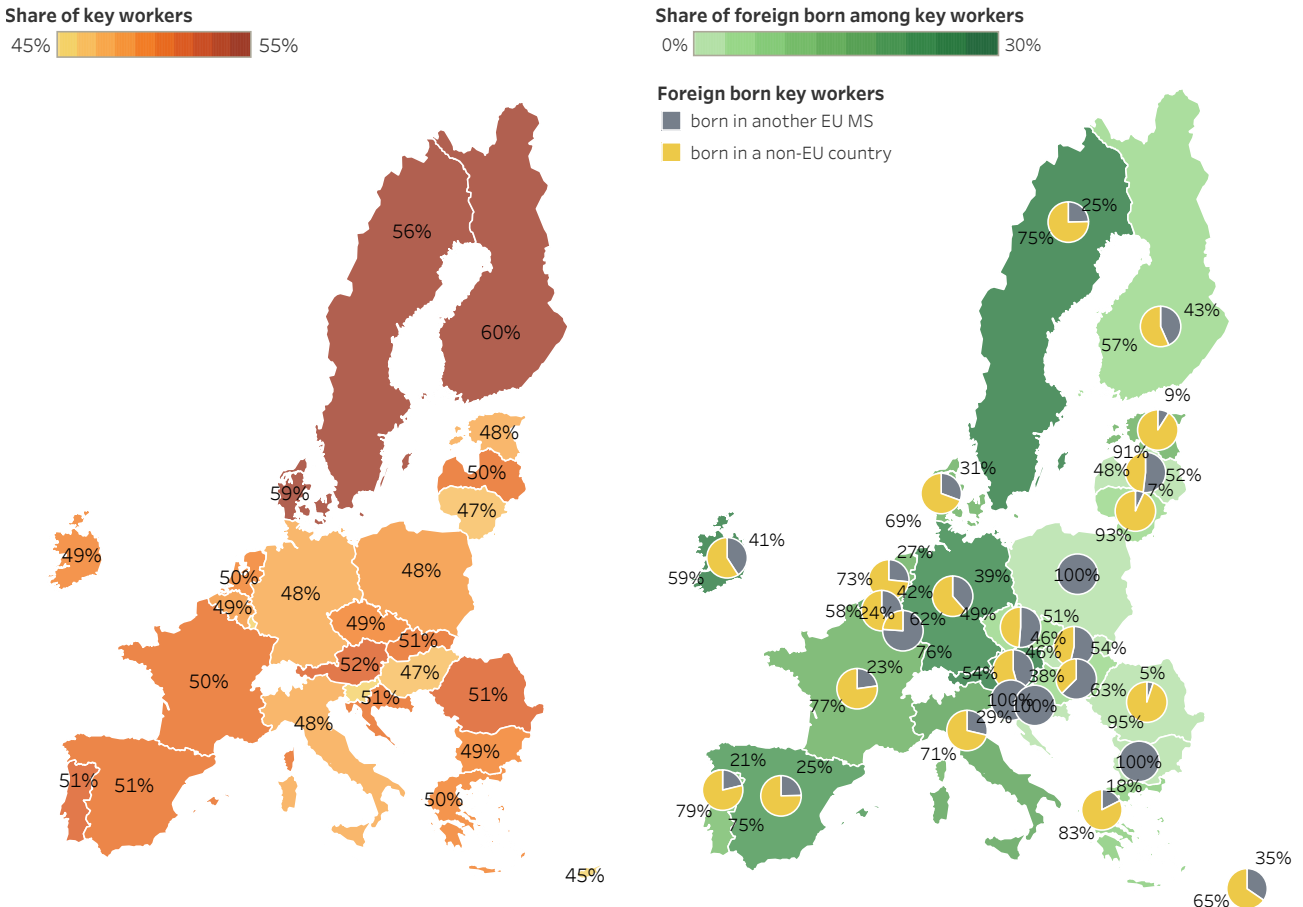

In 2020, the Atlas of Migration presented an overview of the presence of migrant ‘key workers’ in essential roles for the functioning of European societies. These roles were set out in the European Commission Guidelines concerning the free movement of workers during COVID-19 outbreak (2020/C 102 I/03), as people who should be allowed to cross borders because they ‘exercise critical occupations by performing activities related to essential services.’ The thousands of migrants employed in these roles were integral to Europe’s response to the pandemic.

The charts here describe the concentration of migrants in key worker roles across Europe, before taking a look at the trends for migrants across the whole labour market. This is important because the impact of crises on employment tends to hit migrants harder than the general population, and employment is a key indicator of integration and equality. Indeed, as Commissioner Johansson has stated ‘Covid shows migrants are part of society. But also shows, that ours is not an equal society. And Covid is deepening these inequalities.’¹²

As can be seen in the left map of Figure 21, key workers make up a significant proportion of the EU labour force. As was the case in 2020, around 31% of the employed working-age individuals in the EU perform key functions.

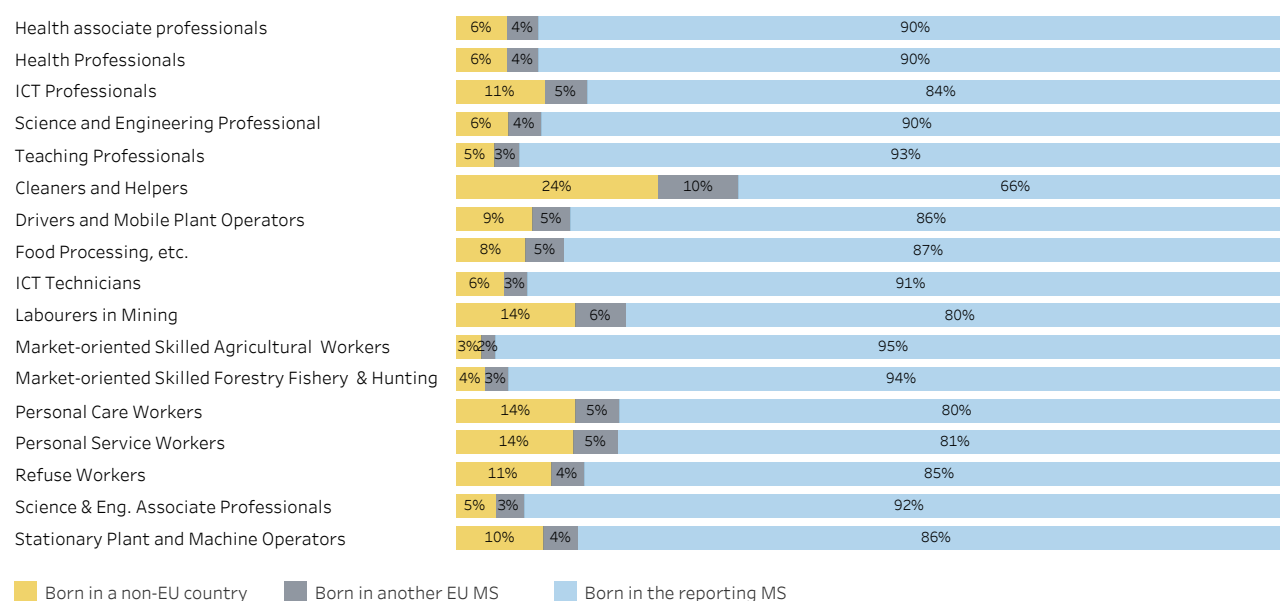

IMAGE 21. Share of key workers in the EU Member States in 2020 (left map). Source: EC's KCMD elaboration of Labour Force Survey (LFS) microdata. Data for Malta is not available.

Migrants represent 13% of all key workers in the EU-27. As the chart in Figure 22 shows, the sectors where the largest proportion of workers are of migrant background are cleaners and helpers, labourers in mining, personal care workers, personal service workers, refuse workers and ICT professionals. But the figure is even higher for some Member States. For example, in Ireland 27% of key workers are foreign born, in Sweden and Austria 25% are and in Germany 22% are. By contrast, in Poland, Romania and Bulgaria, 0% of key workers are foreign born.

Looking beyond key workers to the broader labour market shows how the COVID-19 pandemic has impacted negatively on migrant unemployment. Although the years preceding the pandemic were characterised by a stable decline in the unemployment rate at the EU level, in 2020 this was interrupted by COVID-19 induced economic crises. The unemployment rate for the EU population as a whole increased from 6.8% in 2019 to 7.2% in 2020. Both EU mobile individuals and non-EU migrants fared worse than the native population. They had significantly higher unemployment rates, widening the already-present employment gap further. The percentage point increase in unemployment was the largest for non-EU migrants (2.1), followed by EU Mobile individuals (1.2) compared to that of the natives (0.3).

Furthermore, the impact was particularly severe for young people of migrant origin. Overall, younger individuals (those aged 15-24) had a higher unemployment rate over 2020 compared to older people. But this was particularly so for young migrants from non-EU countries. Before COVID-19 the unemployment rate among young non-EU migrants was the highest across all age and origin groups (23%). It further increased reaching 27% during 2020. And although they faced a lower unemployment rate in the pre-COVID-19 period, young EU mobile individuals also experienced a sharper increase in the unemployment rate than natives, from 14% in 2019 to 18% in 2020.

In sum, the COVID-19 pandemic has reiterated the positive contribution that migrants make to European societies, whilst also underlining their unequal status in the labour market. Whilst it is true that migrants in key worker roles were able to keep working during 2020 due to be exempt from stay-at-home measures, many more faced losing their jobs. This was particularly the case for young people from non-EU countries, who were the most vulnerable to the impact of the pandemic on the labour market.

7. COVID-19, REMITTANCES AND INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL FLOWS

The Sustainable Development Goals and the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration both underline the important contribution that migrants' remittances make to development in their countries of origin. The COVID-19 pandemic has further underlined the global significance of remittances as a vital resource not only for development, but also for responding to and recovering from crises in migrant's countries of origin.

Early in 2020, predictions suggested that the pandemic would lead to an unprecedented decline in the scale of remittance flows around the world, with potentially dramatic consequences for Low and Middle Income Countries (LMICs) in particular. Yet this has not come to pass. In 2020, the scale of global remittance flows dropped by only about 2.3 per cent compared with 2019. Remittances turned out to be resilient and in 2020 totalled USD649 billion, a decline of only USD15 billion compared to 2019.

As noted in the previous edition of the Atlas of Migration, we can consider remittances to be vulnerable to the effects of a crisis when they are composed of flows from a limited range of source countries. When a country receives remittance inflows from a broad range of sources, it is more likely to continue to receive inflows even in a situation of economic downturn in some of them. By contrast, when a country receives remittance inflows from only one or two source countries, the scale of overall inflows is likely to be more severely impacted by the economic situation there. Figure 24 shows which countries have less diverse remittance inflows, such as those in Central America as well as South Sudan and Uzbekistan, and which have more diverse remittance inflows such as India, Nigeria and Ghana. Figures 25 to 27 also show which are the main sending and receiving countries of remittances worldwide. The principal source countries of remittance flows are the USA and Saudi IMAGE 24. Remittances inflow as percentage of GDP (background colour) and in USD billions (figure and size of the circles) by country in 2020. Arabia, whereas the main receiving countries are India, China and Mexico.

However, remittance flows have generally been stable during the pandemic, especially compared to flows of Official Development Assistance (ODA) and Foreign Direct Investments (FDI). Figures 28 and 29 show the relationship between remittances and other financial flows before and during the COVID-19 pandemic. Prior to the pandemic, flows of Humanitarian Aid and Official Development Assistance (ODA) were significantly smaller than remittance flows, and remittances were smaller than Foreign Direct Investments (FDI). Although it FDI was falling before the pandemic, in the context of COVID-19 it declined further still to 999 billion in 2020. If we look only at Low and Middle Income Countries, then remittances are larger than ODA and FDI.

The stability and resilience of remittance flows is further confirmed by data on the destinations of different flows. Whereas the distribution of remittance flows remained relatively consistent (a small decline from 46% to 44% of global remittance flows went to Asia, followed by the EU countries, Asia and then Africa), there were larger changes in the distribution of FDI flows. For example, whereas in 2016 the Americas were the main destination accounting for 31 % of global flows, by 2020 flows to America had fallen to 26% and Asia had become the main destination region, accounting for more than half of all global flows. Asia was the only continent to which the flow increased in absolute terms (from 508 to 570 billion) despite the overall decline. In fact, as Figure29 shows, the countries where remittances represent a highest proportion of annual Gross Domestic Product (GDP) (i.e. more than 10% of GDP in 2020) have smaller FDI inflows than remittance inflows. This suggests that remittances may be more important than ODA and FDI for the future recovery from the pandemic in their countries.
